

Site OHS Coordinator

Established in 1983, Daracon Group has an enviable record of achievement across property, quarrying, mining, landscaping, plant, rail, concrete and civil divisions. Our people first approach has helped us to attract some of the top talent in the region, which helps set us apart from our competitors.

Based on our continued success and project growth, we currently have the immediate need for an experienced OHS Coordinator to join the team based out of our Sydney office. This key position will be predominately site based, working across a range of civil projects in the Sydney Region, however will provide key support in this area across all of our disciplines as required. This is a highly autonomous position that will offer you the ability to be acknowledged for your results and allow you to take initiative and ownership for safety on your projects.

To be successful with this position you will:

- Have detailed experience working within a site based safety role with a similar civil construction or mining organisation
- Have a minimum of a Diploma level qualification in OHS
- Have strong systems knowledge of OHS management systems
- Have a strong understanding of OHS and Workers Compensation legislation
- Be experienced in injury management
- Be a confident and experienced trainer, preferably you will hold Certificate IV in Training & Assessment to support this skill
- Ideally have accreditation and experience in internal auditing
- Have the experience and confidence in your ability and decision making skill to be able to work in such an autonomous role
- Have the ability to negotiate with and influence others, with communication being one of your key strengths

In return for the above skills and experience, we aim to offer an exciting and challenging position that will give you the opportunity to grow your career in a supportive and rewarding environment.
